Mr. President:

Rumors of additional meetings between yourself and the Israeli and Egyptian delegations are growing more intense in Washington, in part spurred on by confirmations by at least one anonymous "member of the delegation."

George Sherman has gotten approval by both the Israeli and Egyptian delegations to state the following:

---Yes, the President did have informal talks last evening with Foreign Minister Dyan and Defense Minister Weitzman.

---We will look into how long the meeting lasted (and not come up with an immediate answer, if ever).

---Yes, the President also had follow-on talks with the Egyptian Minister in the White House this morning (no times available).

---Ambassador Atherton is meeting informally with both delegations today in the Madison Hotel and we understand the Israeli and Egyptian delegations have also had informal contacts today.

This is being put out only in response to direct questioning on it, and the informal aspect is being stressed.

For purposes of the trip today and our press corps, we are planning to confirm what Sherman is saying, ~~the record~~, but only on background so that Sherman, spokesman for all three countries, is the only one on the record on it.

We had several inquiries on the meeting last night, but put all of them off. Now, today, more reporters are getting confirmation, apparently from members of the Israeli delegation or those close to members of it.

I thought it was important that you be aware that this was happening.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: GREG SCHNEIDERS

SUBJECT: Jokes ?

KANSAS

It's good to be here. Actually we just happened to be passing through. We noticed this big function and one of my aides suggested we stop and take a closer look. I said "What if they're Republicans?" He said, "Republicans? In Kansas? !" (Pause) I guess he was right. I don't see a single Republican in the house.

Amy stayed back in Washington. I asked her what she wanted me to bring back from my trip. She said, "Bill Roy."
(Wendy Anderson, Bob Short in Minnesota.)

MINNESOTA

I don't have to tell you about Fritz Mondale's good qualities. After all, you picked him before I did. I always knew the people of Minnesota had good taste.

(In Rochester - Home of the Mayo Clinic)

Usually when politicians come to Rochester it's to get something fixed or replaced or rearranged. Of course the Mayo Clinic's a great place to get "fixed up."

But if you think that's great you ought to try Camp David.

GENERAL

You know we've been trying wherever we can to get the government out of everybody's business. Fred Kahn's done a great job at the CAB making air travel cheaper. I'm going to have to talk to him, though, about all those kids flying in my cabin on Air Force One.

We were glad to finally get our energy bill passed by the Congress. We were beginning to worry that it was going to be the moral equivalence of the 100 Years War.

10/23/78

To Senator Russell Long

Thank you for your telegram of October 17.

I share your disappointment and concern that we were not able to complete action on sugar legislation during the ninety-fifth Congress. Such legislation would have provided a new domestic price support program and provided authority for implementation of the International Sugar Agreement.

It is my intention to support expeditious enactment of legislation in the new session of Congress that will provide a reasonable, sound, non-inflationary domestic program for our sugar producers for the 1979 crop and beyond. I will also urge that the Senate promptly approve ratification of the International Sugar Agreement. Ratification of this agreement would contribute importantly to strengthening world sugar prices.

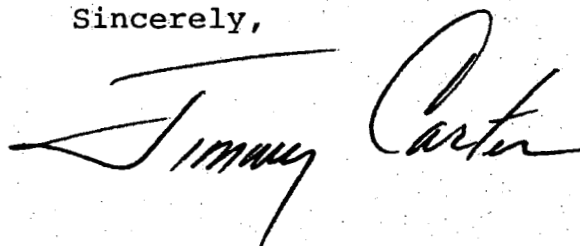

As you are aware, my Administration held firm throughout the entire Congressional Session on any legislation which would have raised the price of sugar beyond a market price of 15 cents per pound. Any price above this for the 1978 crop year would have been inflationary and would have been vetoed. We strongly supported the House Ways and Means measure for a 15 cent price, both on the House floor and in Conference, as a reasonable, non-inflationary price.

I share your view that we should take steps to prevent disruption of the U.S. sugar market. Consistent with the position we took during Congressional debate, I have instructed Secretary Bergland to take steps, consonant with existing authority, to maintain the U.S. market price at 15 cents per pound for the 1978 crop year -- the same price I supported in the House and Senate and in the Conference. As you recognize, our ability to maintain an orderly U.S. market will depend to a large degree on a stable world market price. A functioning International Sugar Agreement is essential to avoid deterioration of the world market and hopefully to continue the recovery of world sugar prices.

I intend, therefore, to maintain provisional application of the agreement, pending Senate approval of the Agreement and enactment of legislation. The United States will again request that other parties to the agreement provide a temporary waiver of those obligations which the United States could not fulfill without new legislation and ratification. I will also instruct Customs officers to monitor our imports from countries not party to the agreement. Should such imports in this interim period threaten to exceed the level permitted under the agreement for 1978 and 1979, I will strictly limit those imports under existing legal authority.

I believe that this policy will contribute to a stable world market necessary to the achievement of the 15 cent minimum domestic price objective for sugar until we can work out a permanent program in the next session.

Sincerely,

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C.

October 17, 1978

As a result of the defeat of the Sugar Stabilization Act in the House of Representatives, world sugar prices have already begun to fall and will be very unstable until there is some indication of what the United States intends to do in the way of a domestic program for sugar. This instability in the world market will eventually be reflected in the domestic market.

During our recent efforts to establish a sugar program assuring a fair price to consumers and an adequate return for sugar beet and sugar cane growers and processors, we had reached agreement on a market price objective of 15 cents per pound. Judging from the votes on the House and Senate bills the majority of the Congress does feel strongly that the sugar industry is in great distress and needs relief of at least 15 cents for this year. Although the market price for sugar is now supported at a level of about 14.65 cents per pound, existing law permits you to adjust import fees or impose import quotas to achieve a market price of 15 cents.

In order to help domestic sugar growers and processors, and as a first step in securing an adequate domestic program, I urge you to take the following steps:

- 1) Immediately announce your intention to support legislation establishing a reasonable domestic sugar program early in the next session of Congress.
- 2) Immediately announce your intention to achieve a domestic market price of at least 15 cents for the 1978 crop year.

Without your immediate action on both of these points, market conditions both internationally and domestically will deteriorate so rapidly as to preclude your option of setting an import fee high enough to adequately support the domestic market at 15 cents per pound.

My dear Mr. President:

As a result of the defeat of the Sugar Stabilization Act in the House of Representatives, world sugar prices have already begun to fall and will be very unstable until there is some indication of what the United States intends to do in the way of a domestic program for sugar. This instability in the world market will eventually be reflected in the domestic market.

Judging from the votes on the House and Senate bills the majority of the Congress does feel strongly that the sugar industry is in great distress and needs relief of at least 15 cents for this year. Although the market price for sugar is now supported at a level of about 14.65 cents per pound, existing law permits you to adjust the support rate to achieve a market price of 15 cents per pound and impose fees or import quotas as necessary to prevent imports from interfering with the support program.

In order to help domestic sugar growers and processors and as a first step in securing an adequate domestic program, we urge you to take the following steps:

1. Immediately announce your intention to work with the Congress to develop legislation to establish a reasonable sugar program early in the next session of Congress.
2. Immediately announce your intention to achieve a domestic market price of at least 15 cents for the 1978 sugar supply year and 15.8 cents for the 1979 sugar supply year.

Without your immediate action on these points market conditions both internationally and domestically will deteriorate so rapidly so as to preclude your option of setting an import fee high enough to adequately support the domestic market at 15 cents per pound.

Sugar Futures Drop After House Rejects Compromise Proposal

A WALL STREET JOURNAL News Roundup

Sugar futures prices yesterday fell their daily limit of half a cent a pound after the House of Representatives rejected a compromise domestic sugar bill Sunday. About 4,800 contracts changed hands but there were 2,800 unsatisfied sell orders at the close, brokers estimated.

The March 1979 contract dropped to 9.14 cents a pound. Analysts said traders were vying to sell contracts because they viewed the House's action as dimming or at least delaying hopes that the U.S. will ratify the International Sugar Agreement, which seeks to support the world sugar price at 11 cents a pound. The Senate refuses to ratify the pact unless there is agreement on legislation to protect U.S. growers from cheap imports.

The bill the House voted down was an attempted compromise between the House and Senate. It set a market price of 15 cents a pound, provided for an 0.75-cent-a-pound direct payment to farmers and escalated prices by 1% a year. Sources said the key obstacle for the House was the idea of a direct payment, which the White House favors. The escalator clause also was for a smaller amount than the House originally had voted, although it had adopted the 15-cent price.

Congress has adjourned until January. Even if it is recalled after the November election, action on sugar isn't expected, one analyst said.

SUGAR: Futures prices continued their reaction to Monday's rejection of domestic sugar legislation by the House. They fluctuated widely amid heavy trading before closing as much as 0.19 cent a pound lower.

At one point, prices were up as much as 0.39 cent but "the market couldn't hold the gain because there was little fresh buying," one analyst said. Some nervousness was attributed to traders' concern that foreign producing nations would become active sellers now that Congress won't be ratifying the International Sugar Agreement, which contains export quotas. "This hasn't happened yet," though, the analyst commented.

SUBJECT: Post-Announcement Briefings on Inflation

In order to maintain momentum for the anti-inflation program in the week following the announcement, we propose that one or both of you participate in four large briefings with persons from around the country.

We would invite about 250 community leaders to the East Room for each briefing, with each to be followed by a State Dining Room reception. The invitation list would be drawn from the following:

1. Small business persons who have worked with Hamilton's office.
2. Other business persons, from small and medium-sized firms, who are recommended to us by the Department of Commerce, including Commerce's Office of Minority Business Enterprises and its Task Force on Women in Business.
3. State and local government officials and other community leaders (e.g., consumer, elderly, minority, and other groups).
4. Persons recommended by Tim Kraft and the Democratic National Committee.

We believe that your personal participation in these briefings is essential. The substantive presentations will be handled by Stu Eizenstat, Charlie Schultze, Barry Bosworth, and perhaps the new inflation "Czar." By opening or closing the briefings, you will indicate your continuing personal involvement in the anti-inflation fight, and will be taking the case for your program directly to the people. In addition, your participation is essential when we are asking people to travel long distances to meet at the White House.

If you indicate your willingness to participate in these briefings, we will work out the details with Gretchen Poston, Phil Wise, and Jim Johnston.

TALKING POINTS

We suggest that you call Senators Long and Stone and make the following points:

- for Long
Jim Grand ✓
1. I am disappointed that the Congress failed to reach agreement on a domestic sugar program after so much effort had been expended by both the Administration and the Congress. The Administration tried hard to achieve an acceptable compromise and thought we had done so until it was narrowly rejected by the House.
 2. We stand ready to try again early in the next session of Congress to reach agreement on an acceptable sugar program for 1979 crops and beyond. We will announce our intention to seek such legislation, as Senator Long requested.
 - Stone ✓ 3. Since the Congress and the Administration are in agreement over the need to implement the International Sugar Agreement, I hope the Congress will move promptly to ratify the ISA so that it can begin boosting market price.*
 4. I will continue to use existing tariff and fee authority to protect the domestic price. Although the current program requires support of a 14.7 cent market price, as a demonstration of the Administration's commitment to attainment of a fair and responsible sugar policy, we will now seek to protect a domestic price of 15 cents per pound. Although we can not be assured that the market price can be supported at this level, given the limitations of our tariff and fee authority, we will use these authorities to their maximum extent. I am also instructing Customs to monitor our imports from countries not party to the ISA and, if necessary, to limit imports under existing authority to assist in maintaining the 15 cent price objective.

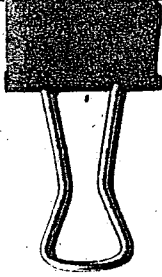

* On this point, we suggest that you seek a commitment from both Senators Long and Stone that they will fight for early ratification of the ISA.

This bill has not yet been enrolled, but I strongly recommend that you sign it today, before your trip to Minnesota. (The Vice President concurs. See attached note.)

THE BILL

This bill adds over 1 million acres to the Boundary Waters Canoe Area wilderness area in Minnesota and establishes an adjacent 222,000-acre mining protection area. This National Forest area is the largest wilderness area east of the Rocky Mountains and contains the largest concentration of virgin forest in the East.

The bill:

- regulates the use of motorized vehicles within the wilderness;
- provides for technical and financial assistance to resort owners and outfitters within the protected areas (approximately $11.2 million over 2 years);
- terminates timbering and requires reforestation in the wilderness;
- encourages timber production on other lands (authorizing $110 million over 10 years);
- severely restricts mining within the mining protection area;
- authorizes Federal purchase of mineral interests within the protected areas;

Enrolled Bill H. R. 12264 -- Wilderness
Designations, Wisconsin

You must decide by Wednesday, October 25, 1978, whether to sign or veto this bill.

THE BILL

This bill designates a total of 13,201 acres of wilderness in Wisconsin in the Blackjack Springs and Whisker Lakes areas of the Nicolet National Forest. Although these two areas currently are being studied as part of the Forest
Service's Roadless Area Review and Evaluation process
(RARE II), the Agriculture Department notes that the areas appear suitable for wilderness designation based on information already available.

VOTES IN CONGRESS

Voice vote in both chambers.

ARGUMENTS FOR SIGNING

- Even though the Administration did not recommend this area, existing information indicates that these areas are suitable additions to the wilderness system.
- Adding wilderness areas east of the Rocky Mountains is consistent with policy articulated in the 1977 Environmental Message.
- There is substantial support in the Wisconsin Congres-

You must decide by Tuesday, October 24, 1978, whether to

THE BILL

This bill amends Federal law relating to the Osage Tribe of Oklahoma. These changes modernize a 1906 law in important respects, including: composition of tribal government; property ownership; inheritance; and tax treatment of trust property. These changes will improve and streamline tribal government.

Only one provision is of particular concern. Special tax treatment for tribal members has been appearing more often in Indian legislation and although Treasury has taken a position not to object to such exemptions, they note this increasing trend and will be looking at it more closely next year.

VOTES IN CONGRESS

Voice vote in both chambers.

ARGUMENTS FOR SIGNING

- The Tribe sought these modernizing changes, which will improve tribal operations.
- These are the first substantial amendments to law governing tribal operations since 1906, and are

You must decide by Tuesday, October 24, 1978, whether to sign or veto this bill.

THE BILL

This bill declares that 14,000 acres of Federal land in New Mexico are held in trust for the Santa Ana Pueblo Tribe and directs the Secretary of Interior to acquire 2,000 acres of additional State land to be held in trust as well. The value of these lands is estimated to be $3.7 million.

These additions to the Pueblo's land would join the two separated portions of the reservation and would enhance economic opportunity for the Tribe. These lands also contain a religious shrine.

The legislation protects valid existing rights on the area.

VOTES IN CONGRESS

ARGUMENTS FOR SIGNING

- The legislation provides for the unification of the reservation and for tribal economic opportunity from grazing and recreational development.

These lands were historically used by the Pueblo and contain significant religious shrines. In recent years, the Tribe has used much of this land for grazing purposes under permit from the Bureau of Land Management as well as carrying out certain religious activities. THE BILL

The financing agreement presently being negotiated between the Treasury Department, New York City and its local financing partners requires City employee pension funds to purchase specified amounts of City debt over the next four years. H.R. 12051 is necessary to permit the pension funds to make such purchases without sacrificing their tax-exempt status. The bill waives prohibitions which would normally preclude such purchases.

The bill also protects the security of employee benefits by limiting the amount of City debt the funds can acquire, and by conditioning these acquisitions upon the City's compliance with the fiscal plan which requires a balanced budget by 1982.

A similar bill for the City was passed in 1975, but that legislation expires this year, and the prior bill does not include the employee benefit "protection" provisions which are in this legislation.

THE BILL

The enrolled private bill would compensate Batavia Turf Farms for the losses it has suffered because of a quarantine that has been imposed on the farm's land by the USDA. The quarantine was imposed because pests were found on neighboring land and no pests have been found on land owned by Batavia.

However, the procedures that Batavia Farms must follow in order to engage in business during the quarantine have caused enough delay to seriously harm the business over the last few years. This bill would authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to reimburse Batavia for its past losses due to the quarantine. The cost could be as high as $200,000.

The problem should not reoccur as USDA expects to lift the quarantine this year.

VOTES IN CONGRESS

The bill passed both houses by voice vote.

AGENCY AND STAFF RECOMMENDATIONS

OMB and USDA recommend approval and Justice has no comment. No senior staff member has objected. Frank and I recommend that you sign the bill.

SUBJECT: Relief of Batvia Turf Farms, Inc.

I have the responsibility for determining the amount of losses by Batavia Turf Farms as a result of restrictions on the movement of grass sod from the farms under the Federal golden nematode quarantine that was imposed by USDA to prevent the spread of the nematode.

We intend to use the resources of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service to identify potential retail markets for turf from these farms and thereby reduce any potential claims for losses subsequent to 1978.

The burden of proof of losses in 1977 and 1978 rests upon Batavia Farms. I do not intend to pay losses before the fact, nor do I intend to pay for anything more than actual losses. Actual losses will be determined based upon the criteria in the report on this bill, but the key will be the facts and the basis for the estimates of loss. Losses claimed by Batavia Farms will not be paid unless they are fully justified.

Mr. President --

This is in response to your question regarding H.R. 12556, a bill providing relief for Batavia Turf Farms.

The House Agriculture Committee directed the Secretary of Agriculture to take the following factors into consideration in determining the level of compensation:

- o decreased sales of sod for the period since the imposition of the quarantine in February, 1977;
- o the decreased value of muck land in the quarantine area;
- o increased costs resulting from special operating conditions imposed by the Federal Government as a result of the quarantine; and
- o additional costs incurred in transferring the sod growing operation from the quarantine area to outside locations so that normal sod farming operations can be resumed.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: FRANK MOORE F.M./BR

SUBJECT: ANTI-INFLATION TELEPHONE CALLS

Because Congressional Liaison has been preoccupied with the closing of the Congressional Session, we have not been involved in the inflation efforts. I am particularly concerned about Congressional notification and want to avoid a situation like the $50 tax rebate issue or, more recently, the energy plan--where it was perceived and decisions were made before Congress was consulted. In order to rectify this, I propose that you make calls to the Members of Congress listed below. I would hope that these calls would take only 2 minutes each--with only one exception, Senator Robert Byrd. These calls would avoid charges that we ignored the co-equal branch of government's input into the implementation of our inflation policy.

The asterisk beside the Members' name indicates that Schultze, Blumenthal or Senator Byrd's staff (who were briefed by Schultze) have talked with the Member or their staffs in the last two weeks.

In addition to the attached talking points, you should thank the Members for their previous support and advise that this is largely a voluntary program that cannot succeed without their support and help.

Because of the positions they hold, the Members will probably be called by the press for their reaction, and you should tell them that you hope they will give positive statements after details have been worked out in close cooperation with them.

You should seek out their opinions as to the advisability of a meeting at the White House on the day of the announcement and whether or not they would be able to come to such a meeting.

Also, in talking to them, you should inform them of your decision on the tax bill.

Talking Points for the President's
Telephone calls on the Anti-Inflation Program

1. I am now close to making my final decisions on the shape of the anti-inflation program that I will announce next week. Before I make my decisions, however, I would like to have your views on the proposals that my advisers have put before me.
2. The major elements of the program I am considering include:
 - A strong effort to restrain the growth of Federal spending and cut the budget deficit. An effective and credible anti-inflation program requires that we take further steps toward fighting inflation in budgetary decisions. My budget plans will be sufficient to ensure that recovery continues, although at a pace slower than the past year.
 - A partial hiring freeze for the Federal Government in order to reduce employment costs and improve efficiency. Agencies will be able to fill only one out of two vacancies.
 - Some new steps to bring the activities of regulatory agencies into better coordination, and to ensure that agencies take the cost impacts as well as the benefits of regulations into account. We must make sure that the burdens imposed on the economy by regulations are no greater than necessary.
3. I am also proposing a set of specific standards for noninflationary wage and price decisions in the private sector.
 - The standard for pay would be about a 7 percent increase in 1979.
 - I intend to ask each business firm to reduce the rate of increase in its prices next year by one-half percent below the rate of increase it experienced in 1976-77. Such a deceleration in the rate of price inflation would be in line with the pay standard I am proposing. (If fully observed, it ought to bring down the rate of inflation in 1979 by about 1-1/2 percentage points from this year.)

- This will be a voluntary program. I have no intention to seek authority to impose wage and price controls, and I continue to oppose using mandatory controls.
4. I am considering one initiative that will require Congressional concurrence and I especially need your guidance on this suggestion. Under this proposal, groups of workers who agree to observe the 7 percent wage standard would be guaranteed a tax rebate if the rate of inflation exceeded 7 percent (the pay standard) next year. This proposal is designed to protect those who cooperate with the program from being injured as a result of their cooperation.
 5. Where the standards are exceeded in particular industries, my Administration would assume that particular problems existed -- such as bottlenecks, or excessive market power, or some other problem. We would consider appropriate government actions to deal with those problems -- such as reviewing trade restrictions, regulations, or government-set prices and wages (Davis-Bacon and Service Contract Act).
 6. I also am considering directing procuring agencies to channel their procurement away from companies that do not meet the standards, so long as such actions are consistent with national security needs and with the mandates of Federal procurement laws.
 7. I understand that you may wish to have more details on these proposals, and I have asked Mike Blumenthal and Charlie Schultze to be available to respond fully to any questions you may have.
 8. However, I would like to have your advice on the proposals before me before I make my decisions. If you wish to call Charlie or Mike for details before you offer any judgments to me, I have asked them to convey directly to me any comments you may have.

SUBJECT: Proposed Statement on the Revenue Act of 1978

Attached is a proposed statement which might be issued if the President decides he will sign the tax bill. It frankly recognizes the disadvantages of the bill together with its strong points. A number of the Congressmen with whom I talked who urged a signature felt that it would be useful for the President to voice his concerns about certain elements of the bill.

I have gone somewhat light on the capital gains provision because of its general popularity and because I see no reason to "beat a very alive horse". I have indicated that the principal reason for the distributional problem lies with the large capital gains reduction. It seems to me that this is the best way to reflect our feeling about the capital gains reduction.

The President has decided to sign the Revenue Act of 1978 when it reaches his desk.

While the bill does not meet all of the President's tax reform goals, it does provide needed tax relief for individuals and businesses that will help to stimulate economic growth in a prudent, non-inflationary way.

Although the President believes the advantages of this bill outweigh its disadvantages, he does have serious concerns about a number of provisions in the bill:

1. Low and middle income taxpayers earning up to $50,000 in income fail to receive as large a percentage of the tax cut as they would have under the President's original proposal. The less equitable distribution of tax benefits to the average taxpayer as compared to the President's proposal is due in large part to the capital gains reduction, 70% of which goes to high income taxpayers.

2. The tax bill defers one of the most important tax reforms passed by the Congress in 1976 -- the carryover basis. This reform is essential to prevent complete income tax avoidance by wealthy persons on a large part of their accumulated capital gains. It is essential that this reform be implemented by the end of 1979.

The Congress also diluted the minimum tax -- designed to ensure that at least a reasonable portion of each taxpayer's economic income is subject to tax. Although the minimum tax in the bill is an improvement over both the Senate and House versions, and it does ensure that tax shelters cannot be used to escape tax liability, the minimum tax rates are still insufficient to assure that all taxpayers will pay tax on their income at the rates applicable to a worker earning about $20,000 a year.

3. Congress did not adopt many of the reforms proposed by the President, which would have made the tax system more fair and equitable.

Despite these concerns, the President based his decision to sign the bill on the following positive factors about the bill:

1. The bill provides tax cuts in 1979 of $21 billion for individuals, families and corporations. These reductions will offset increases in Social Security taxes and will sustain a strong level of economic growth.

2. The bill contains many of the economic incentives for capital investment and job formation that the President sought, including:

- reductions in corporate tax rates for all businesses;
- a permanent extension and expansion of the ten percent investment tax credit; and
- a targeted jobs tax credit to stimulate private sector employment of the hard-core unemployed.

3. The bill contains several tax reforms that the President proposed, including repeal of the gasoline tax deduction, repeal of the deduction for political contributions, taxation of unemployment compensation for higher income taxpayers, extension of the "at risk" provisions to curb most tax shelter activities and elimination of the deduction for entertainment facilities such as yachts and hunting lodges.

4. Congress accommodated the President's firm intention that the bill not exceed budget requirements both for fiscal year 1979 and for future years.

5. The new alternative minimum tax will ensure that tax shelters cannot be used to enable wealthy individuals to escape all but token tax liability on their capital gains.

6. Expansion of the earned income tax credit provides needed tax relief for the working poor earning less than $10,000.

7. The Conference removed many of the most objectionable and inflationary provisions in the separate bills passed by each House:

- the House provision indexing basis for capital gains was deleted;
- the costly exclusion of capital gains on the sale of a house is limited to those over age 55, the taxpayers most in need of the protection provided;
- the tuition tax credit was eliminated;
- the vast majority of the special interest provisions in the Senate-passed version were deleted;

- the extension of the general jobs credit was deleted, avoiding a wasteful use of resources that did not lead to additional hiring; and
- additional corporate rate cuts in future years were deleted.

On balance, the President believes the benefits of this bill exceed its liabilities, and merits his signature.. He will be working with the Congress in future years to continue to make the tax system fairer and simpler.

SUBJECT: Meat Import Bill

Several members of Congress, as well as a number of Democratic candidates (including Bill Roy and Bob Krueger) have urged that you postpone any veto, or veto statement, on the meat import bill until after the election. In their view, a veto would be very damaging to Democratic prospects in a number of key agricultural states. For while many in the livestock industry believe, based on the Administration's earlier statements about the bill, that you will veto it, there is still some uncertainty about your intentions. We share their view that this uncertainty is worth preserving.

You will probably not have to make a decision on the bill until after the elections, for the bill is likely to be held in the Speaker's office long enough to permit a post-election veto.

We recommend that you not indicate during your trip any intention to sign or veto the bill. In our view, you should indicate, and only if pressed to give a statement, that the bill has not yet been received at the White House, that you have not made a decision, and that you will not decide until the bill reaches your desk.
